

British Hong Kong

(1862-1997)

Hong Kong was a British dependency from 1842 to 1997. On July 1, 1997, it was transferred to China, which administers it as a Special Administrative Region. Under British rule, Hong Kong became one of the most active seaports in the Far East. A degree of autonomy remains, however, and Hong Kong continues to maintain its own currency and issues its own stamps.
