

Poland

(1860-1865, 1918-)

A republic in eastern Europe, between Germany and Russia. Between 1772 and 1795, it was absorbed by Russia, Prussia and Austria and did not reappear as an independent nation until 1918. In 1947, the communist regime was finally established and began a thorough program of socialization. In the summer of 1980, the Polish labor movement, Solidarity, led by Lech Walesa, launched a series of strikes that brought major concessions from the government. In 1990 Walesa was elected president, and in 1991 Poland's first free elections.
